THE THIRD DISTRICT.

In redistricting the State by the last Legislature no change was made in the third district, of which Newberry is a part. We are way down at one end and have had only one congressman since the war, and then for only one term. And yet when you take into consideration railroad connection we are as near Wallhalla as we are Saluda or Union, both adjoining counties. We make no complaints of the composition of our district. Recent events in politics show that our people do not select men on account of their geographical location. The Piedmont section has a majority of the white vote in the State, and yet there is no man holding a State office at present from that section. Men should not be elected to public office on account of their geographical location, but on account of their fitness.

In the third district this year the indications are that we are going to have plenty of material from which to select. Thus far there are at least seven candidates actually in the race already, with a possibility of two more at least, and may be several more who have not yet been mentioned. Every county in the district has at least one candidate except Greenwood. The following are announced, and already waging an active campaign: From Abbeville, Wm. N. Graydon, Wyatt Aiken, and I. H. McCalla. From Anderson, E. M. Rucker, Jr., and Geo. E. Prince. From Pickens, R. F. Smith. From Oconee, Wm. J. Stribbling, whose card appears in this issue of The Herald and News. It is probable that Newberry will have at least two—Geo. S. Mower and C. T. Wyche. This makes a sufficient army to have a little campaign of their own. They will all appear before the people and present their claims for the office of congressman from the third district.

A rather peculiar state of affairs exists in the mills in the Horse Creek Valley, near Augusta. The operatives have been shut out and the mills closed by the owners, and from no cause on the part of the operatives. The operatives of the King Mills in Augusta demanded an increase in wages of ten per cent and went on a strike because the request was not granted. The mill owners in the Horse Creek Valley, because the strike was on in Augusta, closed their mills and turned some two thousand people out of employment, though there was no request for an increase in wages, and the operatives themselves say they are perfectly satisfied with the pay, and had no intention of asking an increase, and now insist that they are not being treated with proper consideration, for they are in no wise responsible for the strike in another State, and desire to return to their work at the same rate of wages they were receiving before.

We think their cause is just. They certainly should have some consideration in this matter. They left their farms, many of them, with the understanding that their positions should be permanent so long as they gave satisfaction. Now they are unceremoniously shut out for no cause on their part, but simply because the operatives in another State have demanded an increase in wages. We can see no justice in it. They say themselves if this thing continues very long there will be want and suffering. Action like this on the part of the mill owner is one of the things likely to give us labor troubles. As it appears to us we can see no justification for the mill owners. If the operatives in their mills are satisfied with the treatment and the pay and assure the owners that they have no intention of demanding a raise in wages, and are in no wise responsible for the strike in Augusta they should not be made to suffer for it. This matter should be easily adjusted, and in the first place should never have occurred.

We notice from the Abbeville papers that that town has just started the wheels of a furniture factory. The plant costs $20,000 and the capital stock is all paid up and is owned by home people. Furniture factories have been very profitable when properly managed, and there is no reason why such a factory should not pay in Newberry. The Handle and Shuttle factory will be sold in the near future, and if some one with experience could get hold of this plant and then enlarge it and add the manufacture of furniture and also make brooms we believe it could be made the best paying institution in the city. There is good and up-to-date machinery in the Handle and Shuttle factory, and all it needs is some one to run it who understands the business and will give it his attention. This is an opportunity for some good man to make money.

We regret to hear of the accident which has happened to Mr. P. M. Brice, of Columbia, by which he has to have one of his legs amputated. He is one of the cleverest newspaper men in the State, and we hope he may be restored to health.

The democratic clubs will meet on Saturday to reorganize and elect delegates to the county convention. There should be a full attendance at the club meetings.

Miss Emma Stone has returned to America, and has gone on the lecture platform.

"A neighbor ran in with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when my son was suffering with severe cramps and was given up by beyond hope by my regular physician, who stands high in his profession. After administering three doses of it, my son regained consciousness and recovered entirely within twenty-four hours," says Mrs. Mary Haller, of Mt. Crawford, Va. This Remedy is for sale by W. E. Pelham & Son.

COL. JNO. F. HOBBS

Is on a Visit to Newberry With His Family—Gives an Interesting Interview to The Herald and News.

Col. Jno F. Hobbs and his family are on a visit to his old home. He is accompanied by his wife and daughter. Col. Hobbs is a graduate of Newberry college and always takes a deep interest in his alma mater. Some of the most valuable relics in the museum at the college were contributed by him which he gathered in his tours in foreign lands. For two years he was the classmate of the editor of this paper, though he graduated in a class ahead of us. Col. Hobbs is now editor and part owner of the National Provisioner, a leading trade journal of New York, and his home is in that city. He is doing well and leaves today for Dallas where he goes as a delegate to the Cotton Seed Crusher Convention. With all of his success in the world he has never lost his interest in or his love for the people of his native state where he has many friends who are always glad to see him. If his plan to develop the power on Broad river succeeds it will mean a great deal for this section and for the state.

Col. Hobbs says that he is "in the South on a centralization of power and industrial trip, trying to get together material or facts which will enable him to perfect arrangements for a grand industrial scheme for development of the various communities or small sections of the South where such a group of enterprises can be operated together economically and to advantage. Certain Northern people, capitalists and manufacturers of machinery and installation plants, are taking quite an interest in the details of this Southern industrial development scheme. For instance, there is under offer to me in case the objections to the present working model are overcome, a novel suspended power generator which will make possible the utilization of the water power of Broad river, near the Hobbs' plantation, without the necessity of the conventional canal. Power could be transmitted from there to all points within a radius of 25 or 30 miles—electric power, of course. The purpose is to build and operate a group of small enterprises in or adjacent to certain prosperous communities, the farmers being asked to support these by co-operation more than with their money. The following may be taken as a sample of the nest of small enterprises which can be operated at one point for the benefit of the surrounding people:

"First, a small cotton oil mill. Second, a compound lard, butter and oleomargarine factory. Third, a small cold-storage or warehouse for gathering and storing farm produce, such as eggs, poultry, vegetables and fruits, gathering them at the time when the farmer has a surplus in spring, summer and fall, distribution to be made in Northern markets, summer resort hotels and in winter in the general markets. Fourth, a beef cattle feeding station, and a hog feeding station. Fifth, a fertilizer factory. Sixth, an ice factory for purposes of refrigeration.

"All of these enterprises work in through each other. For instance, a compound lard factory and the dairy utilize a per cent of the cotton oil; the beef feeding station takes off a per cent of the cotton seed meal and cake, while the fertilizer factory consumes the balance. The hog feeding station also takes off a per cent of the meal and the buttermilk or skim milk of the dairy. The oleomargarine factory takes a per cent of the cotton oil, a per cent of the oleo oil beef station, and a per cent of the hog lard in the neutral oil. A soap factory may be added to utilize the residue or foots of the cotton seed oil and certain grades of tallow of the beef station. Each of these plants will be small, limited to a small area and driven by the common power generated in Broad river.

"Machinery people of the North are willing to establish these bunches of industries to gather, conserve and enhance the waste products of the farm. If I can show them that there is sufficient surplus of supplies for them, and that these industries will work profitably one into the hand of the other.

"I am now gathering the information for this purpose and endeavoring to establish a complete inter-linking chain of this group of farm developing industries for certain sections of South Carolina. For instance, a farmer has a beef animal, it will not be profitable for him to fatten one animal and draw attractive buyers for it at a profitable figure. He now sells that animal at about three cents, live weight, at most. If he had a central station to which he could drive that animal it could be sold with the herd or similarly collected animals, at anywhere from five to six cents per pound, standing weight. Farmers will take eight to ten cents per dozen for their fresh eggs at their farms in the summer while northern summer resort hotels are paying as much as thirty cents per dozen for the same.

"Some northern farm produce dealer makes the difference, the South Carolina merchant only getting the brokerage in the transaction. The farmer killing the single steer gets a nominal price for the hide, sometimes he simply cuts it up for raw-hide because he has no better market for it. If he had a central station to which he could carry that hide for disposition it would bring him from $5 to $7 net; instead of about $1, which is more than many farmers now get for a green hide.

"I do not know that anything will ever come of the above industrial project. It will die in its inception unless the data which I shall take back, and the figuring thereon shall show a sufficient supply and a sufficient inter-working of several factories in consuming or enhancing the products of each to justify the erection of the whole bunch of them in one place. Much depends on the ultimate success of the mechanical contrivance being perfected for utilizing power in Broad river as noted above.

"I am looking generally into our southern industrial condition with a view to writing a series of articles in our own industrial magazine—The National Provisioner. The purpose of these being to show that the southern country is a most fruitful field for the investment of the surplus northern capital.

"Yes, I shall stop in Atlanta. It is quite a center of southern energy, and to northern people, even a conspicuous illustration of what other sections or states are capable.

"I shall go to Dallas, Texas, where I am a delegate from New York State to the Convention of the Inter-State Cotton Seed Crushers Association. There are about 615 cotton seed oil mills in the United States. The chairman of the committee on rules has asked me to be present by the 25th, so as to have our rules overhauled and ready for the earliest session of the convention, but as the other members of the committee on rules are very able men, I could not pull myself away from old Newberry which I love very dearly, and my friends, so early after my arrival here. I will return to Newberry about the end of next week to join my family who remain behind me in the hands of relatives and friends, and after spending a few days with my uncle, J. C. Hope, and about my plantation, will go to Charleston to see the exposition. We will spend a week there. I consider this exposition one of the greatest incidents in southern industrial life, and I understand that Newberry has a notable exhibit there in the Woman's Building. From there we will return to New York City about the 20th of May to take up the running where I left it.

"I am proud to say that I find much change in Newberry for the better.

Newberry Defeats Furman.

The game of ball on Wednesday afternoon between the Furman and Newberry College nines resulted in a victory for the Newberry boys by a score of 5 to 4. The game was close and interesting throughout, but the Newberry team simply outclassed the visitors.

More, second, Riser, in centre, and Catagiss behind the bat did excellent work for Newberry. E. Moore's playing on second was fast and snappy. Merchants also played a good third. Corbett on third did the playing for the visitors in the field and batted one ball over centre field fence.

The following is the official score of the game:

Newberry 201020000-5 8 3
Furman 010002001 4 6 5
Base on Balls—Simpson 2.
Double plays—Elmore unsupported.
Home run—Corbett.
Batteries—Newberry, Simpson and Cabaniss; Furman, Hunnicutt, Sublett, and Workman.

Good for Rheumatism.

Last fall I was taken with a very severe attack of muscular rheumatism which caused me great pain and annoyance. After trying several prescriptions and rheumatic cures, I decided to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I had seen advertised in the South Jerseyman. After two applications of this Remedy I was much better, and after using one bottle, was completely cured. Sallie Harris, Salem, N. J. For sale by W. E. Pelham & Son.
